

Darcy Stefiuk

Many of you already know me, but for anyone who doesn't my name is Darcy Stefiuk and I'm seeking re-election for the position of mayor.

For more than four decades, I have proudly called Gravelbourg home. When our daughter was just three months old, my wife and I were drawn to the slower pace of small-town life and discovered the welcoming, family-friendly community that Gravelbourg offers. Its rich heritage and safe environment made it the ideal place for us to settle down and raise our family.

My rewarding career with SaskTel had me working in various communities and created opportunities for me to appreciate the unique amenities and character of our area, inspiring me to seek my first position on council 30 years ago. Since then, I have been honored to serve this community as a councillor and, more recently, as mayor.

While rural communities in Saskatchewan face challenges like long-term population decline, I believe with the right vision and collaboration, we can turn these into opportunities for growth. Despite a limited tax base, our finances are stable, and your council is committed to balancing immediate and long-term needs. By investing in infrastructure, we can build a vibrant, resilient Gravelbourg that attracts families and new residents, ensuring our town thrives for generations.
